Caprio Pushes New Scheme For Councilmen

The revamping plan for Student Council initiated last semester by then president Bob D'Andrea will be presented to the council sometime this semester according to Vinny Caprio, new president of the group.

The plan called for a splitting of the executive and legislative branches of the council in order to give the officers more time to devote to University-wide projects.

The "new" Council would have the president, vice president, treasurer and executive secretary functioning as a policy making body that would represent the students at various administration meetings and present programs of action to the main Council for their approval.

According to Caprio, the main Council would then have room for four extra members and would have a greater chance of functioning as a legislative body should. Caprio also pointed out that this new system would relieve much of the work-load placed on Council officers in that they would only be dealing with policy making and investigation while the main body dealt with the actual legislation.

He cited cases in the past where council officials were forced to resign due to an overloaded schedule of meetings, classes and conferences. The actual acceptance or rejection of the plan would rest with the entire student body in a referendum vote.

Hillel Membership Up, Ready for Big Year

This past Monday and Tuesday evening Hillel held its registration. Hillel is pleased to announce that they had a record turnout of 225 students. This is the greatest enrollment Hillel has ever experienced. The students who joined came with much enthusiasm and spirit to support this organization. With its present members, Hillel will be able to do much for the Jewish students on campus as well as for the University.

It isn't too late to join Hillel. Sunday, Oct. 13, Hillel will present its annual dinner-dance program. This will be free to members and will be at Alumni Hall at 6 p. m. At that time a Hillel Queen will be elected. She will reign throughout '57-58. Hillel is making this an annual affair.

He Wrote His Own Book

Student's Complaints Spur Publication of New Text

How many times have you walked into a class and heard a professor say, "I don't like this text, but we'll have to use it. I also disagree with chapter five but we'll read it anyway." But how many times have you heard a professor say, "I don't like this text, so I think I'll write one."

This unique statement was the outgrowth of a conversation on the merits of the text used in Seminar of Sociology taught by Dr. Joseph S. Roucek. It seems his students were perplexed with the cumbersome writing and poor selection of material and presented their gripe in unison. Much to their amazement Roucek, who is also chairman of the sociology and political science departments, agreed with them. Then he went one step further and promised that he would correct the situation as soon as possible.

Before the week was out Roucek was in contact with most of the leading writers in Sociology today and presented his case. The outcome of the situation won't arrive until next month when "Contemporary Trends in Sociology," rolls off the presses of the Philosophical Library and is used not only in Seminar in Sociology at the University but in most of the leading schools around the country.

Edited by Roucek the work contains the writings of 34 outstanding sociologists from all over the world and is considered to be one of the most up to date books of its kind.

So if you don't like the text you just bought, ask your professor to write a new one. . . but be careful he might just do it.

School Spirit & Loyalty Rests In UB History Not Gimmicks

By Dave Johnston

A paradox exists at the University. The school is only ten years old, yet the college's tradition can be traced back eighty years into the pages of history.

Dixie Belle Made Queen

A honey haired lady of the south copped the hearts and votes of her 700 fellow freshmen to become their Queen of 1958. Given her crown at the Freshman Ball last week, Jane Hillner of East Riverdale, Maryland, will rule as her class beauty for the coming year.

The crowning highlighted a hectic week of activities that ended with an inter-faith brunch last Sunday.

Activities included a president's and vice president's reception, orientation sessions by University administrators as well as student leaders, a picnic on Fones Hall lawn, dramatic performances by the Knights of Thunder, jazz concerts, a concert by the 30-piece University Community Band and campus tours.

In the year 1886, Dr. E. Hermann Arnold, one of the pioneers in the field of physical education, established the school which bears his name. Arnold College, which became a division of the University a few years ago, is the oldest co-educational physical education in the United States.

Although the University itself has but a decade of tradition, the Junior College of Connecticut, from which the University evolved, was founded in 1927. The JCC was the first junior college ever to be chartered in New England.

There is still another field in which the University can boast the primary movement. Dr. Alfred C. Fones, one of the co-founders of the Junior College, was the world founder of the Dental Hygiene movement. The Fones School was introduced at the University in 1949 in response to a petition to the Board of Governors from the Connecticut State Dental Association.

There is just one school in Connecticut with a department of journalism. Again it is the University which is leading the way.

The Student Spirit Committee at the University is continually dreaming up schemes to instill loyalty into the students who "study by the sea" of Long Island Sound. Their inspirations run from changing the name of the school to buying a falcon to use as the University symbol.

Instead of continually seeking new methods of building school spirit, why not just start taking advantage of the many apparently unknown loyalty building symbols already an integral part of the University's history.

All candidates for the University freshman football squad are requested to report to the equipment room of the Gym, between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m., as soon as possible.

Head freshman coach Lou Saccone may be located at the Gym during these hours.

Vets On Warpath Over Vacation Hassel

A determined group of veterans are beating the war drums this week in an effort to change the Christmas vacation schedule back to its original Dec. 18 through Jan. 2 dates or know the reason why.

Four Students Win McLevy Scholarships

Four Bridgeport students have been awarded McLevy scholarships at the University for the academic year beginning Sept. 23.

Recipients include Diana G. Chala, 70 Brittan Avenue, Frank J. Dulin, 1113 Barnum Avenue, Mary Hall of 165 Taylor Drive, and Stanley J. Roman, Jr. of 832 Kossuth Street.

Established last year in honor of the city's 12-term mayor, the McLevy Scholarship Fund now totals $31,600.

Contributions have come from people of all walks of life and from all parts of the country in tribute to Mayor McLevy.

Miss Chala, entering her sophomore year was a McLevy scholarship recipient last year. A dean's list student enrolled in the Weylister secretarial school at the University, she is majoring in executive secretarial studies.

Dulin, entering his junior year, is majoring in business education in the College of Education. Also a dean's list student, he is a member of the University band and the University Community orchestra. He was one of more than 30 University student volunteers to take part in the Hungarian Refugee English speaking program given locally last year.

Roman, a senior, is majoring in physical education in the Arnold College Division of Physical Education. He is a member of the varsity soccer and basketball squads at UB.

Miss Hall, a June graduate of Bassick High school, plans to major in executive secretarial studies in the Weylister Secretarial school.

Third ranking student in her class of 338 graduates, she was a member of the National Honor society. She also received a scholarship leadership pin for academic achievement.

Miss Hall also saved as president of the Order of Bassick secretaries, head usher of the usher's guild, treasurer of the library squad.

Last year the administration changed the vacation dates to Dec. 21 through Jan. 4, much to chagrin of many people on campus. At that time the Scribe stepped in and interviewed Dean Earle Bigsbee, who was in charge of the University calendar and learned that the change had been made at the request of a few students.

Bigsbee maintained at that time that the administration did not care when the vacation was held as long as the majority of students were satisfied. Feeling that a small group of students had no right to speak for the entire student body, the Scribe, with the administration's approval, held a vote to determine the majority's preference. As it turned out the Dec. 21-Jan. 4 date won out and became the official Christmas vacation dates for the University.

The Veterans' group now maintain that the vote was not an expression of the majority of students, but rather a case of apathy on the part of the 1000 students who did not vote at all.

"They all sat back on their heels," one veteran's spokesman puts it, "and didn't bother to vote. Then they found out they didn't have time to work when vacation time rolled around. At least when we broke classes on Dec. 18 we could work six full days at the Post Office or department stores, but this new arrangement gives us only four days."

The group also maintained that the vote was swung by coeds living in dorms who did not work during the Christmas vacation.

"What we are aiming for," the spokesman continued, "is a regular school election where we can get these kids to the polls and get a clearer picture of who wants what."

The group plans to place their proposal before the president of Student Council before next week and hopes to have a decision before the month is out.

All rosters for intramural touch football must be turned in at the equipment room between 2 and 4:30 p. m. Monday through Friday. All rosters must be in no later than 4:30 p. m. Wednesday, Oct. 3.

Could This Be UB? (See Page 5)

Put Down the Ropes, Boys

Just before graduation last June the majority of students were in, what grandmother use to call, a "snit." As far as we have been able to find out, a "snit" is mild irritation as opposed to the nostril dilating type that is usually followed by an angry growl "get a rope boys".

Now this "snit" stemmed from the publication of the yearbook which, to put it mildly, did not come up to some people's standards. It seems that pictures did not jibe with names, and a poor soul who had labored his hours in our vineyard for a B. A. in English ended up with a B. S. in engineering. This was a deep cut indeed to many interested parties, but we are inclined to believe that the "snit" was provoked by graduation fever.

Just to check how important a yearbook is to the average college graduate, we asked a few friends of ours, who had attended this and other schools, what they thought of their yearbooks now that graduation was two or three years behind them.

One said it was in the attic someplace under an old set of football pads and another was quite sure that the baby had attacked her copy with the fervor of a Louis Untermeyer.

All this goes to prove that yearbooks soon lose their importance, usually three days after graduation. Now we are not saying that they lack sentimental value and they should be loaded with mistakes, but we do suggest to the Student Council that last year's staff did not commit a heinous crime.

We also suggest that the Council appoint one competent watchdog to oversee the proceedings at the Wistarian before the book goes to press again this year.

We are however, not suggesting that the Council block any creative ideas, but simply enforce a recognition of routine matters such as getting a degree right or the picture with the correct name.

Maybe last year's book wasn't a crackerjack but there was a lot of work put in on it and the Wistarian staff deserves some kind of recognition, so we say thanks for doing something that no one else wanted to do. Some people might not have liked it but without you they would not have had any at all.

Along Park Place

For the Freshman this will be the introduction to a new society. A society dedicated to the acquisition of knowledge that is theirs for the asking. For others, he has arrived here at the University filled with the anxiety of undertaking a new adventure. For a while his head will be spinning from the countless commands uttered to him by the upperclassmen; and too, from the week of events planned for him by the Freshman Week Committee.

Meanwhile, the former Prima-donnas of a year ago will embark upon what is known in most circles as the "Sophomore Slump." The phones that were constantly ringing, the doors that were being pounded down for them just a little while ago will now be for their little babes in the woods sisters.

Sam Sophomore will be thinking of fraternities, or of the pretty frosh chic who wore the tight sweater in class. Wonder what ever became of, now what was her name? Oh! well, she didn't like beer anyway.

Ron Junior will be glad to get back into the swing of things once again. This year will be different, no more crazy week-ends, or wild frat parties, or going to the Club rather than read tomorrow's assignment. No sir, from the beginning it will be study, study, stu—. Say! ! who is she? Want to see some of the sights that were not in THE FRESHMAN DAZE book-let?

Nancy Junior will begin doing some concrete things for the sorority, or any of the other student organizations she maybe a member of also. Then too, she has her good intentions concerning studies. This year she will definitely make the dean's list, or come darn close.

Northeastern Game Saturday Night UB There

IT WAS A PLEASURE

There used to be an old gag around these hallowed halls that concerned a senior answering a public relations questionnaire on his college life. When he came to the question "Which course was the hardest and most time consuming?" he quickly placed his tongue in his cheek and wrote, "Registration, dammit."

A few short years ago that quipster was making more sense than silliness. Registration was faced with all the negative emotion that faculty and student could muster. It seemed like an endless maze of forms, more forms, close outs and line standing. It might have taken anywhere from one to four hours to get through what seemed to be a Chinese fire drill in the last stages of panic.

There were many reasons for the delay and confusion. The Tech Building was not adequate for the job architecturally, there were more students registering than there were people to handle them and, last but not least, you had to make out a card that gave the same information that you had put on a hundred other cards.

When we started using the Gym last year things were a great deal better. The congestion had stopped and things moved quickly and smoothly. However, this year Prof. David Brown and his registration staff made the grand slam in college registrations. It was painless, it was speedy, by George it was a pleasure.

One thing that cut down actual line-standing time was the pre-registration mailing system under which the students filled out their information cards at home.

We don't know who dreamed it up, but that genius is a ready-made candidate for the Nobel Prize. Along with easing the card problem, Brown's staff seems to function as an integrated team that knows what it's doing.

Of course, there will always be somebody who gets fouled up along the line, but in the long run, Prof. Brown and his staff have done a marvelous job in taking the kinks out of what used to be a horror.

HATS OFF FROSH!

The Frosh have been reprieved. The Freshman Week Committee announced today that freshmen will be able to doff their skull caps whether the varsity wins this week or not . . . there's one catch though.

The "Hats Off" order will be rescinded if there are not enough freshmen at the game to form an alley through which the team will parade onto the field. So if you want to get rid of that chapeau be at the game.

Who will decide if there are enough freshmen there to warrant beanie tossing . . . why the upperclassmen of course.

The Influentials Set Course

The American Public Relations Association and the University will jointly offer a course in public relations to be given on campus during the fall and spring semesters beginning Oct. 7.

James L. MacWithey, national president of the APRA and Dr. Henry W. Littlefield, vice president of the University, issued the announcement this week.

MacWithey visited Bridgeport yesterday, meeting with Dr. Littlefield, Harold Dow, president of the Connecticut Forge of APRA, and several members of the University staff and Forge members.

MacWithey also presented a proposal to the University about the establishment of a Public Relations Institute at the University of Bridgeport to be conducted by the University in cooperation with APRA. The University trustees are considering the proposal.

The APRA president later spoke before members of the Connecticut Forge at a meeting which took place at the Castle Hotel in Old Saybrook.

Commenting on the growth and development of the public relations field and the increasing need for trained executives, MacWithey pledged the support of APRA in setting up more adequate training programs.

The courses to be offered jointly by APRA and UB during the fall and spring semesters on a non-college credit will be centered upon corporate public relations.

Practitioners now in the field seeking additional knowledge as well as individuals seeking to enter the public relations field are eligible to take the course.

Guest speakers provided by APRA will deliver lectures on all phases of corporate public relations at the class meeting with Clement Wyle of Wyle Associates in New York City serving as coordinator for the program.

Registration is scheduled for Oct. 7 prior to the first class session. Further information may be obtained from Frank S. Wright, director of industrial and community services.

UB Minds Meet Electric Brains In New Course

The University of Bridgeport will become the first institution of higher education in Connecticut to offer a course in electronic data processing of business problems, beginning in September, announces Eaton V. W. Read of the College of Business Administration.

Prof. Charles F. Petitjean, chairman of the department of general business and Francis X. DiLeo, chairman of the department of accounting at the University will serve as course instructors.

Such procedures as monthly sales, analysis, payroll, inventory studies, engineering problems, pricing and rate studies, still take days, weeks and even months of active preparation on the part of many people in industry, the professors said.

In order to lessen these time consuming tasks and to free more men from pure desk routine, methods of solving heretofore problems are being introduced with the advent of the electronic computer.

Because of the intense industrial concentration in this area and the increasing use of electronic data processing the University felt that there was now a need to start a program of this kind, Dean Read said.

Business and industrial leaders in the area have recognized the scope of the new electronic data processing concept and have commended the University for its foresight in including the course in its curriculum.

The basic objective of the course will be to present the fundamentals of electronic data processing for those people who will have to deal with the economic implications resulting from technological progress, including business executives, industrial and public accountants, office managers, teachers and students.

National Coverage

Journalism Dept. Featured In Two Magazine Articles

The University's journalism department burst into print on both a regional and national scale this summer with articles covering the training of future industrial journalists.

The regional piece appeared in Connecticut Industry magazine, July edition, while the National article will appear in The Quill magazine next month. Connecticut Industry magazine is a state trade publication distributed to manufacturers. The Quill, on the other hand, is a national outlet for material of interest to professional journalists.

Using the feature article approach, the articles examined the curriculum at the University for training editors of business and industrial publications and came to the conclusion that the journalist is an important member of the industrial family and must be trained for his job with the same intensity as is an engineer or accountant.

Prof. Howard Boone Jacobson, chairman of the department, was quoted by Connecticut Industries as saying that "the program at the University was not a hit or miss idea, but rather the product of a five year experimentation and observation program. Jacobson also pointed out that the standards set by the University in this field have been in the forefront of industrial journalism training. He reported that schools and universities both in this country and abroad have written to the department requesting information on its training procedures and academic structure.

According to the articles the mainstay in the IJ's training is the on-the-job practice that he must fulfill before graduation. Using the diary of one trainee, the Connecticut Industry article showed how a student was indoctrinated into the field by actually working with a professional editor at a local plant.

His day to day observations were analyzed and his progress in journalistic techniques were plotted. Ironically enough, the article pointed out that the student was not the only recipient of new ideas in that the professional editor claimed he had been enlightened on a few points while in contact with the student.

As they say in Flatbush—this is next year. This often quoted phrase never applied better than it does in the case of UB. With a team far more impressive than any in recent years, Bridgeport's Purple and White Knights made the grueling seven hour bus trip to Vermont this past weekend, and arrived back on campus Sunday having had to settle for a 13-13 tie with Norwich College—the second stand-off in two years.

Following the opening kick-off it looked as though it was going to be last year all over again as UB quarterback Vinny Roth's attempted pitch-out to Don Scott, last year's leading ground gainer, was intercepted by Norwich's Pete Cronin, setting up the first T. D. of the afternoon. Two plays later Cronin raced 33 yards to pay dirt.

With Jessup, Gloria and Dixon sparking the attack, Bridgeport knotted the score in the second period as Roth raced around end for 26 yards and the equalizer. Gloria added the extra point.

The Knights got a tough break in the third period when an attempted punt by Roth, deep in Bridgeport territory, was blocked and recovered by Norwich on the Knights' four yard line. Cronin tallied his second touchdown of the afternoon on a quarterback sneak.

The final scoring play was set up by Mickey Donahue, who chalked up 38 yards in four carries. Fullback Tracy Smith plunged the remaining five yards to tie the score midway through the final stanza. UB elected to pass for the tie-breaking point and narrowly missed the conversion.

UB did not look as loose this past Saturday as they did earlier against Trinity College in a pre-season warm-up. The Knights made only two serious mistakes—unfortunately Norwich capitalized on both of them, in what was otherwise a well played game.

It is the belief of Bridgeport's popular head football coach, Walt Kondratovich, that this is one that we should have won, and that we can't afford to make the same mistakes this Saturday against a much bigger Northeastern team.

Coach "Kay" cited the spirit of the team as good and summed it up by saying that it's up to the team now. The potential is there. Expected to break back into the starting lineup at center is Bill Barstow, who received twelve stitches above his right eye in a practice session last week, side-lining him for the opener.

UB will return to the friendly confines of Hedges Memorial Stadium this Saturday evening to play host to Northeastern University. The Knights will be seeking revenge for last year's loss at the hands of the Huskies, who dropped their opener last week to Rhode Island, 12-7. Northeastern sports a large array of starting sophomores and favors a nine man line. Hennessey and Clark, sophomore nose and leading ground ainer respectively, will be the men to stop.

A large and enthusiastic crowd is expected to be on hand at 7:45 to take their first look at the "Go-Go" Knights of '57.

TESTING LIBRARY HOURS

Through the efforts of the Library Committee of the Student Council, the Library will be open on two consecutive Sundays this fall to test its weekend use by students.

Mark's Injury Halts Career

The varsity received bad news this week when Bobby Mark, senior halfback, notified the coaching staff that doctors have advised him to quit playing football due to an injury sustained last fall in a game against Wilkes college.

The injury occurred just before the half ended when Bobby, making a tackle, had the runner's foot lodged in his chest and in the ensuing pileup, caused several ribs to be broken and one of his ribs punctured his lung. Although he had been practicing with the team last week, doctors advised against his playing varsity ball.

Mark played three years of varsity ball at Bassick high school before coming to the University.

In 1954 he played freshman ball and in 1955 he had his best season. He led the Purple Knights in ground gaining and was tied for the most points scored. Lasts year he also saw plenty of action as starting halfback before his injury.

Kay Shifts Coach Staff And Duties

Several adjustments in the University of Bridgeport coaching staff, have been announced by Dr. Herbert E. Glines, director of athletics.

John McKeon, varsity baseball coach for the past three seasons will hand over the reins to Lou Saccone freshman coach for the past two years.

McKeon has requested the change in order to devote more time to teaching in the University's new graduate program in physical education as well as coaching the varsity soccer team, Dr. Glines said.

Saccone will continue as freshman football coach in addition to his new duties.

Gus Seaman who has been assisting Dr. Glines with the varsity basketball squad will assume coaching duties of the freshman basketball team next fall.

Francis Pisson, head trainer during the past year, has been assigned the head coaching duties of the freshman baseball team. He will retain his responsibilities as trainer to UB athletic teams and director of the intramural program.

Walter "Kay" Kondratovich will remain at the helm of the varsity football squad assisted by line coach Peter Alesevich. Kondratovich also heads the varsity and freshman track teams.

Al Sherman will continue duties as head golf coach with Ronald Casarta returning as varsity tennis coach.

Expansion of the physical education program on the undergraduate as well as the graduate level in the Arnold College Division of Physical Education and in varsity and freshman inter-collegiate competition necessitated an adjustment of coaching duties, Dr. Glines said.

University athletic teams now participate on the varsity level in football, basketball, baseball, fencing, track, golf and tennis. Freshman teams compete in football, basketball, baseball, soccer and track.

Varsity Booters Meet Hofstra Sat.

The University Soccer squad, year will be played at an early date. On October 25, the Purple Knights will travel to Storrs, Conn. UConn has one of the finest soccer teams throughout New England. This is the first time that these two teams have met. This addition of UConn to our soccer schedule may lead to other inter-collegiate contests between UConn and Bridgeport. Also on our schedule is powerful Springfield College and they have been one of the strongest soccer aggregation throughout the eastern colleges. With the popularity of college soccer on the increase UB students have a chance to see top-flight soccer played on their own campus.

Last Saturday the soccer team scrimmaged Wesleyan at Middletown in preparation for their season inaugural. Since John McKeon took over as head coach of the soccer team he has compiled a very impressive record, 5-3-1 last season. We can look forward to a fine year for the team.

On Saturday they will scrimmage Yale University and the result should give an indication of what we can expect for the forthcoming season.
